PEDAGOGY

Small groups of anglophone teenagers with similar levels in French. The classes cover all 4 language skills (listening, reading, writing and speaking) and prepares students to deal with everyday situations like asking questions, expressing one's opinion, exchanging thoughts and ideas. Classes include conversation on general topics of interest to students in this age group such as reacting on events in the news or presenting and debating one's appreciation of a particular subject. Students will need to express and explain their personal views and opinions so an active oral participation is important. Written exercises on the essential grammar points to master will be given each week and must be completed when given in order for the group to progress and for students to be ready to pass the A1 or A2 DELF Junior exam.

All teachers are native French speakers, accredited as Jury for the official DELF exams.
